

Santa's Mixed-Up Workshop

HOW TO PLAY

- 1 Pass LEFT or RIGHT every time you hear the word. Keep the gift you're holding at the end.

Mrs. Claus came RIGHT over with a plate of warm cookies. "Take a breath, Twinkle," she said. "Your LEFT hand is the one that makes an L with your thumb. Your RIGHT hand is the other one." Twinkle held up his hands, and RIGHT then it all made sense.
